1. Claims 1-19 are presented for examination.

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

(a) Claim 1, it is not clear what is meant by "in response to waiting", since "waiting" is not a signal,

(b) Claim 1, it is not clear what causes the arming an event monitor.

(c) Claims 2 and 3, the same as (a) and (b).

(c) Claim 4, the same as (a), and it is not clear what causes the request to quiesce signal and when the request is made.

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

5. Claims 1-6 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wilson et al, 4,710,883, cited by the applicant.

Wilson et al teaches the invention as claimed in claim 4 including an electronic circuit for temporarily halting execution of a given stream of program instructions in a digital processing system while a processor is waiting for a subject event to occur, comprising:

(a) an event monitor circuit associated with the given stream of program instructions, adapted for monitoring for the subject event identified in response to processor waiting (col. 4, line 24),

(b) a quiesce logic circuit, which, responsive to the event monitor circuit and to a request to quiesce (col. 5, line 59), temporarily halts execution of the given stream of program instructions, and which, responsive to the event monitor circuit observing occurrence of the subject event, resumes execution of the temporarily halted given stream of program instructions (col. 6, line 3).

The method claims 1, 5, 6 (including "arming", col. 3, line 65 and col. 4, line 23), and 13, the processor claim 2, and the system claim 3 are equivalently rejected based on the same reason.

6. Applicant's arguments filed October 7, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argued that the reference does not teach a monitor associated with a given stream of program instructions (task) but teaches a monitor that monitors all running tasks.

The claims, however, do not distinguish the monitor as separate monitors for different stream of program instructions, as only one stream of program instructions is recited in the claims.

The monitor in the reference controls the execution of the stream of program instructions and as such is associated with the stream.

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Turner et al taught a method of suspending and readying a thread upon occurrence of an event.
